1. In the Periodical Databases box, click on the name of a database

2. If not on campus, sign in (more details here - Access Library Resources)
Peer reviewed journals (also called scholarly or academic) contain research-based articles written by subject experts.

NOTE: Not all of the items found in a Periodical Database are peer-reviewed journal articles. To limit your search to only articles from this type of source, follow these steps.

1. Look in the Limit Your Results area, which is below your search box.

2. Depending on the database you selected, you will see ONE of the following...
   a. Scholarly (Peer Reviewed) Journals
   b. Peer Reviewed

3. Put a checkmark in the box next to the wording option used in your specific database.

NOTE: Location in Limit Your Results area varies by database.
1. Type in your search terms

Pro Tip
If your search terms include multiple words and you want results that include these words in the EXACT order you enter them, use quotation marks.

NOTE: Not all internet browsers or browser settings allow you to see the suggested search term list.

2. Click on Search

Pro Tip
The suggested search term list can give you ideas of more specific ways to search.

U.S. Elections and the War on Drugs

President Obama’s election in 2008 raised hopes that Washington would finally put an end to the decades-long “war on drugs.” After all, Obama had admitted using drugs himself and actually enjoying it—going well beyond former President Bill Clinton’s ridicule-attracting assertion that he had smoked pot but “did not inhale.” In contrast to this year’s electoral campaigns in...

Who’s Using and Who’s Doing Time: Incarceration, the War on Drugs, and Public Health

WITHOUT A PERSONAL

...connection, scientists, researchers, and those who set public policy rarely know the stories of those who are convicted of felony crimes and sentenced to prison: how they came to be incarcerated and what they went home to once released. But the consequences of their imprisonment — social, economic, political, and personal — are evidenced daily in every major city, suburb...
